FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTARY

- On the technical front, the USD Index started above 100.00 amid risk-off sentiment driven by escalating rhetoric from Donald Trump, including threats over the Strait of Hormuz. However, a two-week ceasefire announced on 7 April shifted market sentiment, prompting investors to unwind defensive positions.
- The USD Index then broke below key support levels at 100.00 and 99.00, signalling a reversal from its earlier bullish trend. The USD Index traded range-bound between 97.60 and 99.40 for the rest of the month, while USD/MYR moved within 3.9410-3.9950.
- In April 2026, the Malaysian ringgit (MYR) staged a resilient recovery, regaining its position as one of Asia's top performers after a volatile March. The local currency successfully breached the psychological RM4.00 level, strengthening from a March close of RM4.046 to settle near RM3.97 by the end of April.
- Malaysia's ability to keep inflation below 2.0% despite global energy volatility reflects strong economic resilience and effective policymaking. Although targeted subsidy reforms may raise short-term costs for sectors like construction and utilities, they represent a strategic shift toward stronger fiscal sustainability, industrial efficiency, and more equitable long-term growth.
- Malaysia's economy grew 5.3% y-o-y in 1Q2026 (4Q2025: 6.3%), indicating resilient but moderating momentum. Growth was driven by services and manufacturing, supported by steady domestic demand, while mining contracted due to lower oil and gas output. Looking ahead, growth is expected to soften in 2H2026 amid weaker global conditions and ongoing geopolitical uncertainties.
