ASSET ALLOCATION

FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTARY

- In April, U.S. stock markets had mixed results. The Nasdaq rose by 0.88% due to strong performance in the tech sector. Meanwhile, the S&P 500 declined by 0.68%, and the Dow Jones Industrial Average dropped by 3.08%. The decline was mainly because of the major stocks fell significantly which led to poor performance.
- In Malaysia, the local benchmark, the FBM KLCI, declined at 6.22% in April, closing at 1,540.22 points. Similarly, the FBM Emas Shariah Index (FBMS Index) recorded a decline at 10.45%, ending the month at 11,274.29 points.
- In the commodity markets, crude oil prices experienced marginal fluctuations. Brent crude fell by 15.26%, closing at USD 61.06 per barrel, while WTI crude settled at USD 58.21 per barrel. The decline in oil prices was driven by OPEC+'s decision to proceed with unwinding the voluntary production cuts maintained for months. The organization agreed to increase production by 411,000 barrels per day in June, marking the second consecutive month of production hikes. Additionally, former President Trump's imposition of multiple tariffs globally has sparked fears of a recession, potentially slowing down oil demand.
- The Department of Statistics Malaysia (2025) saw the headline inflation increased at a slower rate of 1.4% in March 2025, while core inflation remained at 1.9%. This was driven by a slower increased in the main group of Personal Care, Social Protection & Miscellaneous Goods & Services of 3.6%.
